Ohio Apples Provide Helping Hand to Hungry Children

The Ohio Apple Marketing Program was one of the sponsors for the Ohio Pork Producers Council's 14th
Annual "Taste of Elegance". Ohio Apple Marketing Program (OAMP) Consultant Connie Cahill has worked with Robyn Callicoat of the Ohio Pork Producers Council to assist in this event. Several chefs included apples or apple products in their recipes. Many thanks also go to Mark & Shawn Schmittgen with Heartland Orchard for their assistance with this project.

Competition provided the platform for assisting Ohio's hungry children when the Ohio Pork Producers Council and the Ohio Hunger Task Force joined together in a major charity event in Columbus on Thursday evening, November 9th. The 14th annual "Taste of Elegance" highlighted ten of Ohio's elite chefs, who prepared pork dishes, vying for the title of Chef Par Excellence. The OAMP, one of the sponsors, provided apples to the chefs for their presentations.

The People's Choice award of "Cinnamon Roasted Pork Tenderloin with Caramel Sauce & Apple Chutney" was presented to Chef Eric Pfaff of The Medallion Club in Westerville. The state's top award, Chef Par Excellence, was awarded to Chef Gabriel Ybarra of Handkes Cuisine and Catering. Superior Chef was presented to Chef Todd McDunn from Catering By Design for his "Middle Eastern Influenced Classic Pork & Apples" dish. The Premier Chef category went to Chef Michael Braddock of Braddock's of Grandview. Comments from several chefs indicated their pleasure in developing their entries around the natural flavor combination of apples and pork.

Apples play an important function in good nutrition practices as evidenced by recent research from Cornell University. Nutrients found in both the apple skin and the flesh inhibits the growth of colon and live cancer cells. The antioxidants found in apples are playing a key role in providing a natural, healthy solution to food choices.

People's Choice Award Recipe

Cinnamon Roasted Pork Tenderloin

With Caramel Sauce and Apple Chutney

by Chef Eric Pfaff, The Medallion Country Club, Westerville, Ohio

2 each pork tenderloin
1 teaspoon salt
1 teaspoon black pepper
4 tablespoons ground cinnamon
2 tablespoons brown sugar
1 tablespoon granulated sugar
1/4 teaspoon allspice
1 tablespoon vegetable oil
2 cups apple chutney (see recipe)
1 cup caramel sauce (see recipe)

Method:
1) In a bowl, mix the following ingredients: salt, pepper, cinnamon, brown sugar, granulated sugar and allspice.
2) Rub seasoning mixture into the pork tenderloin and refrigearate about 2 hours.
3) In a large skillet, heat oil.
4) Sauté pork tenderloins on all sides for 3-5 minutes.

Place in a roasting pan and roast in a 350 degree oven for 30-35 minutes, or until the internal temperature reaches 160 degrees.
Carmel Sauce:
1/3 cup apple brandy
1/2 cup granulated sugar
2 tablespoons apple cider vinegar

Method:
1) Using the roasting pan, deglaze with the apple brandy on high heat.
2) After one minute, add the sugar and vinegar.
3) Cook on high heat until mixture reduces by half.

Apple Chutney:
1 Ohio Golden Delicious apple, cored, diced with skin
1 Ohio Granny Smith Apple, cored, diced with skin
1 Ohio Rome Apple, cored, diced with skin
1/4 cup apple cider vinegar
3 tablespoons brown sugar
1 shallot, cleaned and diced
1 tablespoon vegetable oil
1 Jalapeno pepper, seeded and minced
1 teaspoon cornstarch

Method:
1) In a small saucepan warm vegetable oil.
2) Add diced shallot and jalapeno and sauté for 3-5 minutes.
3) Mix cornstarch with 1 tablespoon cider vinegar. Stir well and set aside.
4) Add remaining ingredients, except cider vinegar, and cook until apples are semi-soft and transparent.
5) Stir in cornstarch-vinegar mixture and stir until thickened. Add remaining vinegar.
6) Cook on medium heat for 3 additional minutes before serving.

Apples Are Santa's Favorite Snack

This just in to the Ohio Apple Marketing Program office from the North Pole: Santa would rather find an apple than a cookie by the mantle this year. The Claus family reports they are focusing on better health, so Santa wants to let kids know he is requesting a new snack -- an apple.

In a recent interview, Mrs. Claus said she and Mr. Claus are eating more healthy foods these days, and wanted to let kids know. "We thought, just think of the example we can set for children! An apple for Santa would be a tasty snack that's healthy too. Plus, apples are nice Christmassy colors - red and green!"

In fact, Santas everywhere are turning to healthier lifestyles. Mall management company General Growth Properties (GGP) reports Santa's helpers in many local shopping malls are exercising more and eating less. And more than half of Santa's helpers surveyed recently by GGP said they'd prefer an apple to a cookie on Christmas Eve.

"The Clauses, like many other families, are realizing they need to watch what they eat," says Elizabeth
Pivonka, Ph.D., R.D., and president of the Produce for Better Health Foundation. "By providing Santa with a tasty, healthy treat, kids can help Santa reduce his risk of diet-related disease and learn healthy eating habits in the process."

Why does Santa want apples this year? The numbers speak for themselves: one medium-sized apple contains 80 calories and no fat, while two regular-sized chocolate chip cookies pack in about 170 calories and 10 grams of fat -- and that's before super-sizing them. According to recent Bureau of Census data, there are about 25 million households in the United States with young children. If only half of those families left Santa two chocolate chip cookies, Santa would consume over 254 million grams of fat and over 1 billion calories -- excessive by even Santa's standards. An unidentified elf said, "He's already having a hard time getting into his suit. Enough with the cookies already!"

Available in a range of flavorful varieties, apples indeed offer a healthy holiday bite. Excellent sources of dietary fiber, apples have no fat, sodium, or cholesterol, and are packed with natural phytonutrients, recently found by Cornell University researchers to provide more disease-fighting power than a 1,500 milligram megadose of vitamin C. Apples also provide potassium, which helps control blood pressure and protects against stroke, as well as boron, an essential trace mineral that may promote bone health.

Santa was exercising on his treadmill and was unavailable for comment.

To munch healthfully this holiday season and all year long, the U.S. Apple Association (USApple) and the Ohio Apple Marketing Program recommends following Santa's healthful guidelines:

- Stick with the U.S. Department of Agriculture's (USDA) Food Guide Pyramid for a healthful, flavorful diet, including at least five servings of fruits and vegetables every day.
- Add variety to your diet and add spice to your life by eating a variety of foods each day.
- Nothing is off limits - just eat less of some foods (like sweets and fried foods) and more of others (like fruits and vegetables).
- Take changing your eating patterns a day at a time, and you'll build healthful habits for a lifetime.
- Above all, enjoy eating! Food that is good for you can taste good too.
