Cues (Identify the Data Needed for Making Correct Decisions)

Errors (Indicate What May Result if Incorrect Decisions are Made)

1. Define why a business plan is needed and review a completed example of a business plan

- Reviewed an example and was able to identify the main components of a business plan and how they integrate and how the example applies to the business/industry. Was able to define why you needed a business plan (financing, decision-making, communicate with partners, focus the business).

- Computer with internet access, colleague with business plan expertise, sample business plan.

- Research skills, basic math skills, business knowledge, analytical skills, basic financial knowledge, communication skills, interpersonal skills.

- N/A

- Creative, visionary

- What is relevant in this example to my situation? Where else might I look for relevant examples? Where will I find a competent expert to help me understand and develop a business plan? Do I have the correct information to complete the forms? Is this example protected in some way legally?

- Sections of the example related to a similar business, respected organizations and individuals within the industry, feedback from experts you consulted.

- Won’t be able to accomplish defined business goals, may not be able to get funding, permits, insurance, etc.

2. Develop SWOT analysis to identify personal and business goals, internal strengths and weaknesses, and external opportunities and threats

- Developed a detailed SWOT analysis, clearly articulated how your business fits your, your business goals, and the industry. Developed business goals based on SWOT analysis.

- SWOT analysis template, completed example of a SWOT analysis, example of a SMART goal.

- Knowledge of SMART goals, knowledge of the industry, knowledge of personal goals, knowledge of the market and community.

- N/A

- Analytical, introspective, detail oriented, methodical, knowledgeable

- Can I objectively assess my strengths, limitations? Can I scan the environment to identify the opportunities and threats? Can I set SMART goals? Can I identify gaps in my overall strategy based on the SWOT?

- Data sources were well-founded, industry is fairly represented, goals are based on solid assumptions, gaps were clearly identified.

- Won’t be able to objectively analyze the business relative to internal and external factors

3. Define the management factors of your plan such as property and equipment, HR, legal and regulatory, record-keeping and business history

- Management factors were clearly identified and sources used were credible.

- List of management factors, examples of supporting documents.

- Business knowledge relevant to the business factors, research skills, analytical skills, interpersonal skills.

- N/A

- Analytical, methodical, knowledgeable, thorough, practical

- What are the management factors in my business plan? Have I objectively assessed those factors? Do I understand business practices and risks? Do I know how to minimize gaps?

- Data sources were well-founded, risk factors are identified and addressed, can clearly articulate capacity to accomplish the goals.

- Won’t have what is needed to accomplish business goals, will be vulnerable.

4. Define the marketing plan (see A-2)

- Consciously completed an executive summary of one page, reviewed it with a knowledgeable expert, and identified any final improvements needed to finalize the business plan.

- Business plan example, previously completed sections, trusted colleague, computer with spreadsheet and word processing software.

- Writing skills, interpersonal skills, analytical skills, computer skills, working knowledge of business plans, knowledge of required stakeholder information, ability to look at your business through the perspective of others such as insurance providers, bankers, etc.

- Awareness of protecting the confidentiality of the business plan.

- Thorough, detail oriented, open minded, follow-through

- What do I need to complete the plan? Who can I get to review it? What changes do I need to make? How will I use this plan? How will I protect this plan?

- Feedback from trusted colleague, information provided is what is required by stakeholders, information is kept to make business decisions and provide focus.

- Won’t have needed support for the business, business won’t have focus.
